

Why Recycle?

Most household garbage is sent to landfills or dumps. With people producing more and more waste, landfills are filling up faster than we can find new sites for them. By recycling we can substantially reduce the amount of household garbage and help to preserve our landfills. Waste reduction hinges on the participation and support of everyone. To be effective, it must incorporate the “3R’s”:

Reduce the amount of garbage you discard by purchasing durable, long-lasting goods and products which can be used again after its original use is completed.

Reuse containers and products; repair what is broken or give it to someone who can repair it. Donate unwanted items to charity or community groups.

Recycle as much as possible, which includes buying products with recycled content. Purchasing products made from or packaged in recycled materials saves resources for future generations.
